Course description:

The course introduces students to vernacular and high-style architecture and its relationship to social, political, and economic forces in the United States. The focus will be on the forms, spaces, and stylistic traits of historic architecture, how architecture has evolved through the years, how technological evolutions and innovations have influenced architecture, and what the built environment reveals about public and private life.

The class will combine lectures by the instructor, student presentations, in-class discussion, case studies, readings, and field trips to achieve the goals specified below. The course will focus primarily on the United States. The course traces architectural developments from pre-European settlement to the post-modern period.

Course Goals and Learning Objectives: At the completion of this course students should be conversant about

- significant architects in the United States
- the major American architectural styles and traditions
- the origins and evolution of vernacular and high-style architecture
- influences on regional architectural styles
- social, economic, and political forces that shape the built environment
- common architectural terms employed by architects, historic preservationists, and architectural historians

Prerequisites: HIST 1110 or HIST 2112. Though not required, students would be wise to complete “Introduction to Public History” (HIST 3325) prior to taking this course.

Required Readings:

Additional readings as assigned will be posted on WEB-CT.
Optional Reading:
Attendance and Participation: You are expected to attend class and to participate in class discussions. You are expected to participate as well as show up. This means that you ask questions, contribute to class discussions, and are generally engaged in what’s going on in the classroom. To facilitate your engagement, you should read the assignments, arrive on time, turn off your cell phone, pay attention, and take notes.

In order to stimulate discussion and encourage you to read the weekly assignments, you will be required to prepare two discussion questions each week based on the assigned reading. Questions should be typed and should include your name in the upper left-hand corner. You will be asked to submit your questions to the professor at the end of class. You may be called on to ask your questions in class as part of the class discussion. The typewritten questions serve as the roll for each class session. If you do not submit your questions, you are effectively counted as absent. Failure to read the assignments and prepare discussion questions will result in a four-point reduction of your average for the semester.

Student Services: The Office of Disabled Student Support Services (Student Center Addition, Suite 267) offers services to aid disabled students with their academic work. Arrangements for special services should be made at the beginning of the semester so that appropriate accommodations can be made.

Academic Honesty: Every KSU student is responsible for upholding the provisions of the Student Code of Conduct, as published in the Undergraduate and Graduate Catalogs. Section II of the Student Code of Conduct addresses the University’s policy on academic honesty, including provisions regarding plagiarism and cheating, unauthorized access to University materials, misrepresentation/falsification of University records or academic work, malicious removal, retention, or destruction of library materials, malicious/intentional misuse of computer facilities and/or services, and misuse of student identification cards. Incidents of alleged academic misconduct will be handled through the established procedures of the University Judiciary Program, which includes either an “informal” resolution by a faculty member, resulting in a grade adjustment, or a formal hearing procedure, which may subject a student to the Code of Conduct’s minimum one semester suspension requirement.

Writing Center: The KSU Writing Center is a free service offered to all KSU students. Experienced, friendly writing assistants work with you throughout the writing process on concerns such as topic development, revision, research, documentation, grammar, and mechanics. Rather than edit your paper for you, writing assistants will help you learn strategies to become a better writer on your own. For more information or to make an appointment (appointments are strongly encouraged), visit http://www.kennesaw.edu/english/WritingCenter or stop by Room 242 in the English Building.

Field trips: We will be taking several field trips throughout the semester in the Atlanta metropolitan area. You are expected to show up on time, take notes, and ask questions as appropriate. Field trips represent a great opportunity for you to apply what you’ve learned in the classroom to the real world. You will see questions related to the field trips on the exams.

Research Paper & Presentation: You will write a 7-10 page research paper (1,750 – 2,500 words, Times New Roman, 12-point font) on an architect chosen from a list provided by the professor. You must submit a bibliography for your paper, including at least 5 sources.
Your paper should discuss the life and work of the architect and his or her significant works. You should include the historic context within which the architect worked and what impact he or she had on the field of architecture and the built environment.

You may use your textbook as one of your sources for the research paper. You may also use credible websites as sources. If you are confused about the credibility/reliability of a website, please see me. Architecture Week’s Great Buildings Collection at http://www.greatbuildings.com/ is an example of a credible source that you will likely find very useful. You are encouraged to make use of ProQuest Historical Newspapers online available through the Sturgis Library, such as the New York Times (NYT). Obituaries of famous people, which often appear in the NYT, are always enlightening, if not always truthful. Wikipedia IS NOT a credible source! While Wikipedia does offer an overview for most of the architects on the list, entries to Wikipedia are made by the general public, and the website is not a credible source for a research paper. To quote from the Wikipedia website, “Anyone with internet access can write and make changes to Wikipedia articles. There are no requirements to provide one’s real name when contributing” (http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Wikipedia:About). Feel free to use Wikipedia to get background information or to locate other sources, but anything you read there should be corroborated from another, credible source. If you cite Wikipedia as a source, I will deduct 10 points from your grade.

For documenting your sources (bibliography and footnotes), follow The Chicago Manual of Style using the humanities style guidelines, which are available online at (http://www.chicagomanualofstyle.org/tools_citationguide.html). A hard copy of The Chicago Manual of Style, 15th ed., which is a useful resource for all your questions regarding grammar and punctuation, is available at the Sturgis Library. Your paper will be graded on composition and content.

You will give a 5-10 minute presentation on the architect about whom you have written on the date assigned for your architect on the syllabus (see Tentative Schedule on page 4). You should prepare a PowerPoint presentation that includes an image of the architect as well as images of important buildings designed by the architect.

Exams: You will be given two exams throughout the semester. The first exam will cover the readings, lectures, presentations, and class discussions from week 1 through week 6 exam. The second exam will cover the readings, lectures, presentations, class discussions, and field trips from week 8 through week 16. Exams may include short-answer, identification, and essay questions on material covered in the readings, lectures, and field trips.

Grading:
Research Paper & Presentation 40%
Exams 60%

Grade Scale: 90-100=A, 80-89=B, 70-79=C, 60-69=D, 0-59=F

The following rubric will be used to assess student papers:

A = Excellent. Your paper will
- Have a strong thesis (main point) that is clearly supported by an organized essay
- Provide excellent examples to support your thesis
- Show thorough comprehension of the ideas presented in class and in the reading
- Demonstrate innovative ideas and approaches
- Have strong analyses of material arguments found in lectures, reading, and research
- Contextualize ideas and arguments to the overall historical period
- Have proper citations
- Be written clearly, with few errors in grammar, spelling, punctuation or usage

B = Good. Your paper will
- Have a valid thesis that is supported by a mostly well-organized essay
- Provide appropriate examples to support your thesis
- Demonstrate comprehension of the ideas presented in class and in the reading
- Analyze the material and arguments found in lectures, reading, and research
- Connect ideas and arguments to the overall historical period
- Have proper citations with few mistakes as per syllabus
- Be written clearly, with minor errors in grammar, spelling, punctuation, or usage

C = Satisfactory/Average. Your paper will
- Have a thesis, perhaps flawed, or one that is incompletely supported by the essay
- Provide examples to support your thesis
- Demonstrate basic comprehension of the ideas presented in class and in the reading
- Reveal some incompleteness in the research
- Incompletely analyze the material and arguments found in lectures, reading, and research
- Incompletely connect ideas and arguments to the overall historical period
- Have improper citations
- Be written clearly, with some errors in grammar, spelling, punctuation, or usage

D = Below Average/Barely Passing. Your paper will have one or more of the following major problems:
- A weak thesis, or one that is incompletely supported
- Incomplete or weak organization
- Weak examples that do not support the thesis
- Show minimal comprehension of the ideas presented in the class
- Show incomplete research
- Partially analyze material and arguments found in lectures, reading, and research
- Missing or incorrect citations
- Show lack of coherence, or many errors in grammar, spelling, punctuation, or usage

F = Failing. Your paper will receive an “F” if it meets any of the criteria below:
- Does not meet the minimum requirements for a D
- Shows evidence of plagiarism
- Does not fulfill the requirements of the assignment
- Contains an unacceptable amount of compositional errors
- Written in stream-of-consciousness or incoherent argumentation
